

Welcome back to another #Friday5.

We only received one question (more of a statement) this week and we'll respond below. Just another quick reminder: the South Barrington Park District created #Friday5 to answer questions regarding the auction/sale of Area N on Feb. 28 – which is about one month away. Our hope is to keep the lines of communication open between the park district and the people affected by the sale. As we have been saying, questions or statements by residents were found on social media and answered here for everyone to read.

If you asked a question somewhere and we did not see it, check back next week to see if your question or statement is answered. If we missed it completely and want your question answered, feel free to send the question to Executive Director Jay Morgan at jmorgan@sbspd.net.

Here is the question and answer:

Question/Statement from this week: Advertisement should include Crain's Business, Wall Street Journal and Chicago Tribune.

Answer: The park district hired an auction company to handle all aspects of the sale of the vacant property. Rick Levin and Associates have had years of success in auctioning off properties like Area N. So, in this regard, we lean toward their judgement on where ads should be placed. However, the ads are not just in the Pioneer Press and Daily Herald as mentioned last week. Rick Levin and Associates have placed ads in other publications. Below are ads that ran in the Wall Street Journal and the India Bulletin in the last week. We will ask them if they also plan to put the ads in the Tribune and Crain's Business.

Wall Street Journal

India Bulletin

That's it!! We'll see you next week!!
